- Top 70 worldwide

By FT 2016 ranking the school achieved the highest progression in this year's ranking, climbing 20 places to 67. This is despite its alumni having the lowest average salary at $114,589. Nonetheless, this is a 7 per cent increase compared with last year. Its alumni also had a salary increase of 72 per cent compared with their pre-EMBA salaries, 11 percentage points better than last year. Also in the school's favour is the fact that it has one of the most gender-balanced student and faculty bodies.

Program Mission

The MBA program of GGSB aims to provide the core knowledge in all the functional areas of business, to develop the technical and interpersonal skills necessary for managers today and to stimulate and encourage managerial and entrepreneurial initiatives. By integrating management theory, thinking and techniques with real life examples from peers and faculty, students are encouraged to adopt a holistic view of business and to think critically and strategically. The program also seeks to meet the needs of companies by producing graduates who understand and who can adapt to the changing global environment and who are able to manage in a multicultural context. The Grenoble MBA should be a passport to career development and progression by creating managers who are assets to the companies employing them.
