ABOUT ME

I am studying international relations at Caucasus University, due to the fact that the program covers almost all important areas of my interest (law, economy, human rights, history). 3 years ago, when I was among the top 501 students, I was convinced in my own abilities, and since then, at any stage of life, I take challenges as an incentive to get what I wish.

At the same time, I try to actively attend various conferences and trainings, obtain new skills, networks, and knowledge, and develop myself in different directions. I am currently studying Italian and Persian and doing as much physical activity as possible in my leisure time.

I like to travel, communicate with people, and get to know different cultures. In this regard, I got the best experience with the help of the Erasmus program when I studied for one semester in France at the Catholic University of Lille. It was the most gratifying result of strong determination and hard work, and I will work for similar results in each case.
