

Annemieke Wolthuis

Dr Annemieke Wolthuis is an independent senior consultant, researcher, trainer and mediator in the Netherlands specialized in children's rights, human rights and restorative justice.

She is mainly working for Restorative Justice Nederland, but also for universities and (international) organisations. As from September 2023 she started for two days a week as a senior researcher for the Centre of Expertise Safety and Empowerment of the Applied University Avans in Den Bosch. She is also a substitute youth judge in the Court of Rotterdam. Previously she worked for the Verwey-Jonker Institute in Utrecht on European and national research projects in the field of law and for Defence for Children.

She holds a PhD on restorative justice and children's rights and edited in 2022 a book with Tim Chapman. She is a member of the editorial board of the Dutch/Flemish journal on restorative justice and for 6 years she was the vice chair of the European Forum for Restorative Justice (until June 2022).
