University of Szczecin

During the week of 12-16 June, I visited the University of Szczecin, Poland. In the framework of the project I conducted the lectures on the following topic “Georgia, the cradle of wine. Wine traditions and wine tourism products”. During the visit I also met the management staff and professors of Faculty Economic, Finance and Management and the professor of Montenegro University.

Main discussion topics during the meetings were introduction of tourism programs and teaching methods, main challenges of education and tourism sectors of the countries and partnership availability among Universities for the future.

The interest from those three Universities were high and is planned to develop some tangible partnership forms for the near future.
