ABOUT ME:

In addition to studying psychology, I work as a fashion model. Along with teaching me the importance of individual expression, professionalism, and perseverance, this experience has also helped me become more confident, disciplined, and creative. I like to travel, see different cultures, and learn from the many fascinating people I encounter. These experiences inspire me to grow both personally and professionally and broaden my perspective.

I love traveling and connecting with people from diverse cultures and sharing knowledge. I decided to become an ambassador for Caucasus University because I want to increase awareness of Georgian culture.

My objectives are to make a significant contribution to CU students lives, advance the ideals of my "alma mater" and assist in the growth of the university system. I intend to gain useful experience and develop active, meaningful communication with members of my generation.
