ABOUT ME:

My name is Nini. I graduated from Zugdidi Public School №2 with a gold medal and subsequently pursued my studies at Caucasus University, specializing in International Relations and Diplomacy. I also undertook academic training at Royal Holloway, University of London, which enabled me to cultivate a broader and more nuanced international outlook.

From an early age, my aspiration has been to pursue a diplomatic career as an ambassador. I attach great importance to establishing the right foundation for this path and to advancing it through knowledge, perseverance, and determination. International politics, diplomacy, and foreign affairs are domains that deeply engage me. My ambition is to translate my academic knowledge and acquired experience into practice and contribute to representing my country at its highest level on the international stage.

In parallel with my professional interests, I place strong emphasis on personal development. I am passionate about reading, listening to music, writing short stories and novellas, and traveling. These pursuits not only enrich my creativity but also broaden my perspective and provide me with valuable new insights.
