ABOUT ME:

I have been studying the Bachelor of Law program at Caucasus University for two years now. I believe that studying at university is valuable not only for academic growth, but also for fostering the intercultural bonds that connect us all. For this reason, I have always found the initiatives organized by Caucasus University particularly compelling, and I am privileged to contribute more actively to them through my role as a Caucasus University Ambassador. I consider myself a sociable individual, with a genuine enthusiasm for engaging with new people and, through such interactions, continually expanding my personal and intellectual horizons. I maintain an interest in various disciplines, particularly athletics—with a special appreciation for basketball—alongside the arts, including cinema and music. Moreover, I find great value in traveling and in the exploration of historical and documentary materials, which further enrich my understanding of diverse cultures and perspectives.
