Program Content

The program is a balanced and challenging one, equipping participants with the analytical, leadership, and managerial skills to facilitate their strategic role in leading transformations. Through regular group work on cases and individual assignments on management dilemmas, students will showcase their newly acquired knowledge skill sets. Insights into current managerial issues, geopolitics, macroeconomics, governance, among the variety of topics, will provide a transversal view for systemic change strategies. Hands-on methods include face-to-face team negotiations, business simulations, live business cases, best practice sharing, inverted classroom methodologies, and more.

MBA Networking and Grenoble Discovery Week

GEM MBA students are invited to attend this week-long session in Grenoble, enabling students from campuses in Grenoble and Tbilisi to come together to network and attend seminars and conferences on key management issues. The week includes a tour of GEM Labs, company visits, networking, alumni and career development events, and company speakers.

"I am a founding partner and vision lead of ACT. Based on my new knowledge, I was able to lead a transformation process of ACT from a leading international research firm to the global evidence-based Management Consulting company, which operates in 28 countries and empowers leaders and organizations of the future for significant changes."

- Tinatin Rukhadze

"I do management consulting, coach project managers to obtain PMP certification and manage educational projects, which includes: assisting companies in implementing LMS systems and creating new, innovative models for self-learning and sustainable development." - Ivane Nadiradze
