Ludwigshafen University of Business and Society, Germany

Within the framework of the Erasmus+ administrative staff mobility program, the academic managers of the Caucasus University School of Medicine, Mariam Tsadzikidze and Nini Balashvili, visited Ludwigshafen University of Business and Society in Germany, where they participated in the academic and cultural activities organized by the partner university.

During the visit, the participants became acquainted with the specifics of the university's work, academic programs, laboratories, and infrastructure. The meetings focused on communication strategies, as well as on management, control, and sustainable development. During the program, the participants visited the Mercedes-Benz Museum in Stuttgart and Heidelberg.

The mobility experience helped our representatives both to deepen their professional expertise and to strengthen international ties and set plans for future cooperation.
