

Nino Zhizhilashvili, Maka Chichua

Darmstadt University of Applied Sciences, Germany

During the week of November 24-28, within the framework of the Erasmus+ Administrative Mobility Program, Caucasus University School of Media Dean Nino Zhizhilashvili and Associate Professor Maka Chichua of the same school participated in the International Week program organized by the Faculty of Media of Darmstadt University of Applied Sciences, Germany, which was held at the Dieburg campus. Representatives of various European universities participated in the program.

The International Week program included both lecture courses, as well as meetings and field trips. Participants had the opportunity to receive detailed information about the various directions of the Faculty of Media, as well as learn about the processes of how students work in modern studios and how they create media products.

University representatives also participated in the annual international university fair of the University of Darmstadt, where they presented Caucasus University and provided all interested parties with detailed information about our university.