Sciences Po, France

Caucasus University gave me the opportunity to spend the spring semester of 2025 at Sciences Po, on the Reims campus in France, within the framework of the Erasmus+ program. This became one of the most memorable and impressive moments of my life. Within the framework of the program, I had the opportunity to meet numerous interesting students from various countries around the world and to engage in daily interaction with them, both in academic settings and beyond.

Living in a city that preserves France's most treasured cultural heritage, and studying at a university distinguished by the highest quality of teaching and high standards, helped me broaden my outlook both culturally and academically.

Most importantly, I had communication with professors and students specialized in political science, which clearly had an impact on my professional development and critical thinking, as I was constantly exposed to opinions shaped by different perspectives.

I also had the opportunity to participate in various volunteer activities organized by the university.

In addition, I made many friends, which is particularly valuable to me. I consistently tried to represent my homeland in the best possible way, and I am confident that I left a positive impression of Georgia on everyone.
