

Nikoloz Egorashvili

Bachelor's program of Business Administration

Caucasus Business School

Sopot University of Applied Sciences, Poland

“The Erasmus+ exchange program was a truly special experience for me. It was not only related to academic knowledge, but also had a great impact on my personal development.

While studying in Sopot, I was introduced to new ideas and different learning approaches, which gave me the opportunity to see my field of specialization from a different perspective. At the same time, it was important to discover a foreign culture, make friends with students from different countries, and get acquainted with a new environment.

This semester taught me independence, flexibility, and accepting new challenges. I think Erasmus+ is not only about studying abroad, but also an opportunity to become a more open-minded person with diverse experiences, which will be useful to many in the future. I am grateful to Caucasus University for this opportunity.”