

Eliso Nozadze

Sopot University of Applied Sciences, Poland

From May 11-15, as part of an Erasmus+ administrative mobility program, Eliso Nozadze, a representative of the Student Services and Academic Process Monitoring Department of Caucasus University, visited Sopot University of Applied Sciences in Poland.

During the mobility, the participant had the opportunity to become familiar with the host university's academic and administrative environment. A meeting was held with a representative of the International Relations Department, who presented the university's activities, areas of international cooperation, and ongoing projects. Within the framework of the meeting, the representative of Caucasus University introduced the host institution to the university's activities, international experience, as well as the functions and key areas of work of her department.

As part of the visit, the participant also learned about the city's history, cultural heritage, and local traditions.

The purpose of the visit was to exchange experience and best practices between the universities, strengthen professional connections, and deepen international cooperation.
