

Ani Kazarian

Caucasus School of Business

ISCTE Business School, Portugal

„Caucasus University has opened my interesting history book, which started in Georgia when I became a CU student. From the first day of enrollment, I knew that CSB would be a guarantee for my life and career. A lot of friends, the best education, and professors, all pushed me to always develop, that's why with the help of the university, I was allowed to continue my studies at ISCTE Business School in Lisbon, Portugal, at the Faculty of Business Administration. It's hard to believe that a person can put so much emotion into a short text, it was a challenge to myself to create a better version of myself. The job search process became easier for me through the events and conferences held at ISCTE.

When you leave Georgia, you automatically enjoy those instincts that are dormant, and you didn't think you ever had. These are the instincts of self-survival, independence, love, defense, and struggle, you learn to enjoy life and know that no one can solve the existing problem except yourself. During the exchange program, I rediscovered myself, as if a little girl woke up in me, for whom this adventure was a dream. I was very lucky in my circle of friends, everyone welcomed me very warmly, I didn't have any barriers, I love people and life. I am constantly striving towards my goals to make my dream a reality. If you ask me how I would evaluate my situation, I will tell you "The intensity of passion is in building, not in enjoying what is built."

Now in Georgia, I know that hard work is always valued, I am grateful to Caucasus University for giving me the greatest opportunity and grateful to ISCTE for this experience. This period is the most colorful and vivid in my memory. I advise everyone to listen to their heart and spend all their time on education, to use every chance in life. I am proud of myself, everyone should experience this feeling."