KOC University, Turkey

From CU to KU

„Six students from Caucasus University packed their luggage and left for Istanbul. It was not difficult to leave our families and friends because we were looking forward to an adventure called Erasmus +, which we've only heard about from the experiences of others.

The Erasmus + exchange program for some reason has always been associated with Europe, but suddenly we found ourselves at the crossroads of Asia and Europe - Istanbul. This city is not limited to the Bosphorus and the Hagia Sophia, such tourist attractions are just a façade, behind which, if given the chance, you should definitely look into, and we had more than enough time for that, which made our exchange program even more interesting.

As for the university. In one semester we found ourselves with students at one of Turkey's most advanced university, which is another new challenge in our lives. We learned a lot, we studied interesting subjects, we had qualified lecturers who tried their best to make us feel comfortable in a foreign environment and were always ready to answer any of our questions.

We liked the environment, the friends we made here, the university dormitory, the library, where we can come and study at any time of the day or night.

We try to enjoy every second as much as possible and come back with new skills and experience. We wordlessly agree that one semester spent here will forever be etched in our minds as one of the best days, weeks or months.”
