„Even before I arrived in France, I knew there were many exciting and colorful adventures ahead, but the reality was beyond my expectations. A different learning system, contact with students from different countries, local lecturers, daily interactions with the French, gave me significant experience and contributed to my personal and professional development.

Studying in France and living independently was a great challenge for me. I think my personal qualities and aspirations for novelties have helped me to easily overcome this new stage of life. I think France is the best place for student life and travel. Getting out here was one of the best decisions of my life.”
