FH JOANNEUM University of Applied Sciences, Austria

„One of the reasons of choosing Caucasus University was the Erasmus+ exchange program. I've heard a lot about this program and it was my aim from the beginning to participate in it. So, when I was given the opportunity to study for one semester at the FH JOANNEUM University of Applied Sciences, Austria, I have accepted this offer with a big pleasure. Austria and specifically Graz has fascinated me from the very first day, with its calm and pleasant environment.

The study process has been different from ours, but it has been interesting. Professors, invited from different countries, have tried its best to make the online teaching process interactive and interesting. It should also be mentioned, that during the covid-19 pandemic, University has tried wonderfully to look after the safety of students and to ease the stressful environment. Of course, some of my plans have been affected because of pandemic situation, but despite that, during this semester I have learned lots of things. I have become more independent, I've learned to work on group projects with students of different nationalities and I was introduced to their culture, also I have started to learn German language.

Personally, I think that this program is the best way to get to know yourself and for personal growth. I would strongly suggest students to participate into this program in case of availability.”
