

Nika Kopaleishvili

Caucasus School of Business

Student of the Dual Degree Bachelor's Program in Business Administration at the Grenoble School of Management and Caucasus University

"I am convinced day by day that enrolling in Caucasus University was one of the best decisions of my life. CU allows students to gain experience through an international program that will last a lifetime.

My relationship with Grenoble started out very strange. At university I saw writings about GEM, Grenoble. I inquired and discovered that it was a university in a small, mountainous town in the south-east of France. I later learned that there was a dual degree bachelor's program between CU and GEM. With the support of my family, I am already in Grenoble today and have the opportunity to receive a high quality education at one of the leading universities in France. The learning process is different and interesting, adapted to the student and the use of the knowledge accumulated by them. This is a new challenge for me and I see new opportunities in all of this. I would like to point out that there are about 15 people of different nationalities in the group and we have the opportunity to get to know each other's culture and improve our communication skills'.

It should be noted that the cooperation of Caucasus University with the Grenoble School of Management started in 2004. The partnership envisages the implementation of dual degree educational programs at both bachelor's and master's levels.