

Giorgi Papava

University of Alcalá, Spain

Caucasus School of Technologies

„Joining the Erasmus+ exchange program at the University of Alcalá went beyond just an educational journey; it was deeply impactful. I truly appreciate the University of the Caucasus's involvement in such programs, as it marks progress towards European engagement and national growth.

In Alcalá, meeting people from various nationalities broadened my understanding of worldwide cultures. This academic adventure was special because I had the chance to learn from outstanding lecturers. They didn't just teach me; they sparked a deep interest in my field and motivated me to push myself further.

Spain, known for its vibrant culture and welcoming atmosphere, was especially enchanting in Alcalá, making my experience there very special. The historic streets, buzzing with monthly festivals, were intriguing, and visiting the Cervantes house-museum, dedicated to the famed Spanish author, was always a highlight. The university building itself, rich in history, made my arrival there feel like stepping into a story, leaving a lasting impression on me.”