

Ketevan Mindorashvili

Adam Mickiewicz University, Poland

„One of the main reasons I chose to apply to Caucasus University was the availability of exchange programs, as I have always aspired to study abroad. I was committed to participating in such a program from the beginning of my academic journey.

In my second academic year, I decided to apply for the announced exchange program. I recognized this as a significant opportunity that I needed to embrace. The application process was challenging, but my determination to succeed remained unwavering. Ultimately, when I received the acceptance letter from Poland, I was both thrilled and slightly anxious about the transition. However, I quickly adapted to the new environment.

During the five-month program, I had the privilege of meeting and forming friendships with numerous individuals from various cultural backgrounds. I attended engaging lectures, which contributed to my academic and personal development. Additionally, I gained the ability to live independently and manage challenges and obstacles on my own, which significantly contributed to my personal growth.

In conclusion, I firmly believe that participating in the exchange program was one of the most impactful decisions of my academic career. The knowledge and experiences I acquired will undoubtedly be invaluable in my future pursuits. I am deeply grateful to Caucasus University for providing me with this exceptional opportunity.”