Université Catholique de Lille

As part of the Erasmus+ academic staff mobility program, in March 2023, I visited Catholic University of Lille (France).

During the visit, I conducted a course of lectures on managerial accounting topics for undergraduate students of the Faculty of Management, Economics and Science. At the lectures, we discussed the basic principles of managerial accounting, performance evaluation and responsibility accounting, relevant costing for managerial decisions, and principles of making typical decisions. But, most importantly, I had the opportunity to provide information about Georgia and Caucasus University to more than forty students from France and other countries. I conducted an exam at the end of the module and I am happy that the students showed above average results.

I met with local academic staff and administration representatives. During the meetings, we discussed the great importance of international relations and such visits.
